Today's Crime Against Democracy: The Smearing of Scientific Exit Polls

Right now in America, the central computers that tabulate votes from electronic election systems, including touch-screen, optical scan, and punch card equipment, are prone to tampering and vote shifting. They have not been certified secure and the software code that they use is not subject to public inspection. In 2004, these machines were tampered with in 10 of the 11 "swing states" where the 2004 presidential election was decided, especially in Florida, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

In that election year, the candidate who would carry two of the three states would win the presidency. Yet there were shifts of 4.9%, 6.7%, and 6.5% from exit poll data to official machine tallies--all in favor of Bush.

Exit polling is a well-established and highly reliable science, and the exit polls for the 2004 election were some of the most well-funded and carefully conducted polls in history. It was therefore odd when a discrepancy occurred in the Presidential race between the exit polls and machine tallies of 7 percentage points nationwide – an astonishing 9 million votes. Subsequent statistical analyses by responsible teams of academics indicate the problems were not due to polling error but rather corruption of the machine count. A few of the many indicators for this conclusion are that the discrepancy was significantly higher in battleground states, in Bush strongholds, and where more Election Day problems were recorded. In every case, the discrepancies favored Bush and not Kerry, a statistical impossibility. Unfortunately, the mainstream media consortium that contracted for the exit polling has refused to release precinct level data that could have been used to investigate fraud.

This information has not been reported in the mainstream media. In spite of the extensive expert, independent analyses that have been done, the propaganda promoted by the mainstream media, political pundits, and other political operatives was that the discrepancies were due to problems with the exit polls. The underlying assumption was that the machine counts were correct.

It should be noted that such discrepancies were not limited to the 2004 Presidential race. Discrepancies occurred in several U.S. Senate races in 2004 and at least one in 2002, as well as a few gubernatorial races in 2002 and 2003. In all cases, the discrepancies favored the Republican candidates.

*History, Suspects & Perps: Exit Polls Detect Fraud, Preserve Democracy! (Except in the USA)

Historically, exit polls have proven to be very accurate, often to within a ½ of 1% (0.005) margin of error. Discrepancies between exit polls and the final vote counts is solid evidence that something in the election results is wrong. From Ukraine to Mexico, exit polls have provided key evidence of vote tampering or fraud which has led to public outrage in those countries. But in the U.S., exit polls have been "swiftboated" by a calculated partisan campaign to throw them unfairly into disrepute. Computer security expert Chuck Herrin noted this ironic trend, "the sudden 'unreliability' of exit polls in the U.S. coincides with the use of paperless electronic voting machines." Coincidence?

VIDEO: Dr. Jonathan Simon of the Election Defense Alliance demonstrates through statistical analysis that Bush's popular vote "victory" in 2004 is impossible. He explains the highly discredited "Bush Reluctant Responder" Theory used by pollster Mitofsky to 'adjust' the exit poll results was not supported by Mitovsky's own data and was in fact contradicted by it. This is an explosive commentary on the disastrous state of our democracy and the media complicity in propounding utterly unsubstantiated theories and mathematically impossible election outcomes. A SPECIAL APPEAL FOR INDEPENDENT EXIT POLL SUPPORT

- Exit polls, whether in the Ukraine or the United States, are the most powerful tool available for detecting vote fraud and theft — which is why the campaign to discredit them has been so determined.
- Ensuring the integrity of Election 2006 will depend upon reliable exit polls: polling data that are independent of media control. Media-controlled exit polls are, obviously, rendered useless when they are "adjusted" to conform to announced vote results, as happened in 2004.
- Along with many groups, we support the Vote Count Protection Project Plan. Under the direction of a top expert in exit polls, Steven Freeman, ElectionIntegrity.org is working closely with Election Defense Alliance \(EDA\) to perform exit polls in key locations and analyse the data. Please see ElectionIntegrity.org for more information and ways you can be involved, donate or volunteer.

Action & Prevention:
Counter the Smears, Donate to Exit Poll Projects and "Do Your Own" Exit Polls

1. Please donate or get involved in the Vote Count Protection Project.
2. When you read mainstream news article claiming Bush won a majority of votes in 2004, write or email the author to make sure he or she is well aware of the consensus among statistical and polling experts that he did not.
3. You can Do Your Own Exit Poll. See this form for an example.
4. Download the Citizen Action Page and take action to stop crimes against Democracy.
